MRS. FELIX QUINTEN ALEXANDER

Alexander-Lipscomb Nuptials Spoken Here Sunday Afternoon

The First Baptist Church was the scene of a wedding of unusual beauty and simplicity last Sunday afternoon, June 6, at 4 o'clock, when Miss Ardell Sue Lipscomb, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lee Lipscomb of Mooreville, became the bride of Felix Quinten Alexander, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. F. Perry, of Winston-Salem, N. C.

The marriage was solemnized on the twentieth wedding anniversary of the bride's parents and was performed by Rev. J. Marvin Smith of Rockingham, who officiated at the wedding of the bride's parents. Rev. W. B. Carr, pastor of the church, assisted. The double ring ceremony of the faith was used. Mrs. Ed Robertson of Mooresville, pianist, and Charles M. Garrett of Wingate College, and Rockingham, uncle of the bride, presided at the organ. The bride, "pre-sented a program of nuptial music. Mrs. Robertson played, "Clare de Lune," "Rosaire," "Always," "Sonata," "Estralla," "Serenade," and "Indian Love Call," prior to the speaking of the vows. Mr. Garrett sang, "Because," "At Dawning," and "My Hero" from the Choccolate Soldier before the vows were spoken, and as the bride he sang, "The Lord's Prayer," "To A Wild Rose" to be played during the ceremony, and the traditional wedding march was used for the processional and the recessional.

The church was attractively decorated with Oregon fern, pink gladioli, Queen Ann's Lace and lilies. See WEDDING—Page Three

Fire

Mr. Blackwelder said he had no theory as to why the fire might have begun, unless it started from a cigarette. His warehouse, containing a great deal of stock, was not harmed.

About one-third of the estimated

$150,000 loss was covered by insurance.

Mr. Blackwelder said he would continue operations here through his downtown store, located on

Meeting Street. He has other stores

in Dobson, Mooreville and Jones-

ville.

The main store building which was destroyed last night had been operated by Mr. Blackwelder for 10 years. In fact, the store was engaged in its 10th anniversary celebration at the time of the blaze.

Black's store and service station,

next to the furniture firm, was damaged slightly by heat and smoke.

Blackwelder records were stored in a fireproof safe, along with about $1,000 in cash, and none of the contents there were harmed.

The fire is located two and one half miles from Stateville.

Festival last fall but today can recall the image of a woman I saw many years ago and not one single thing about her has become dim-mer with the passing of time.

The Pacific Steamship Navigation Company operated a fleet of passenger vessels between Liverpool and Australia via the west coast of South America. These ships were of the 35,000-ton class

and were named after famous

people. The ship "Orono" was known along the route as "British O Boats." I was aboard the

Orono and we were in-bound

from Sydney and were about a

thousand miles due west of Anto-

fagusta in Chile and following the

Tropic of Capricorn in a smooth

sea when we were asked to stand

by and pick up a woman passenger

from a sister ship, the Orono, out-

bound from Liverpool. I was below decks when the transfer was

made but word traveled quickly

among the passengers and make

way for her to follow. Somewhere

between Valparaiso, her ship's

last port-of-call, and the spot

where the transfer was made a

radiogram had come telling of

his death, and because, I suppose,

it was such a pathetic case, the

kind-hearted skipper of the Orono

had arranged for her transfer and

return to England. "The British

O Boats" became the name they

gave to the ship. I remember

every detail of the scene, the

color of her eyes and hair, the

whiteness of her throat in the

moonlight, even into the shape

of her hands as she clutched

the rail. But to save my life I cannot recall whether the Queen

of the Mooreville Victory Festival

was a blonde or brunette and that is the way it is in life, the pattern that shapes our days as we

go from the cradle to the grave.

ships were of the 35,000-ton class

and were named after famous

people. The ship "Orono" was

known along the route as "British O Boats." I was aboard the

Orono and we were in-bound

from Sydney and were about a

thousand miles due west of Anto-

fagusta in Chile and following the

Tropic of Capricorn in a smooth

sea when we were asked to stand

by and pick up a woman passenger

from a sister ship, the Orono, out-

bound from Liverpool. I was be-

low decks when the transfer was

made but word traveled quickly

among the passengers and make

way for her to follow. Somewhere

between Valparaiso, her ship's

last port-of-call, and the spot

where the transfer was made a

radiogram had come telling of

his death, and because, I suppose,

it was such a pathetic case, the

kind-hearted skipper of the Orono

had arranged for her transfer and

return to England. "The British

O Boats" became the name they

gave to the ship. I remember

every detail of the scene, the

color of her eyes and hair, the

whiteness of her throat in the

moonlight, even into the shape

of her hands as she clutched

the rail. But to save my life I

cannot recall whether the Queen

of the Mooreville Victory Festival

was a blonde or brunette and that

is the way it is in life, the pat-

tern that shapes our days as we

go from the cradle to the grave.

Russia Is Ready For A Long Fight

Moscow, June 8.—Soviet army commentators, marking the Russian equivalent of V-E Day, boasted Monday that Russia was prepared for a long fight in the event of war.

This was Moscow's first reaction to the week end statement by U. S. Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington, that Russia might soon be in a position to launch a sudden war against the United States.

It came, from Maj. General Nikolai Malin, writing in Moscow's Red Star, that the "Soviet people are ready to meet any challenge of the United States."

Other military writers delivered a series of editorials and special articles emphasizing that foreign imperialists were intent on "tomorrow's war. All of them emphasized that the "Soviet people were not afraid of the machinations of international reaction directed against the U. S. S. R."

Maj. General Nikolai Malin, writing in Pravda, said the "modern first-class Red Army had developed 'strategy and tactics far superior to, obsolete' bourgeois theories of total war in the blitzkrieg fashion."

By clinging to blitzkrieg total war and other such theories, Tolstoy said, bourgeois military

Carillon Blues

Plymouth, Mass.—Policeman George Cowdry ran to the historic First Church, Uxbridge, when he heard the carillon bells playing "The St. Louis Blues." He arrested church organist Edward Ward, 42, who was charged with intoxication.

Police were spelling their own doom. He said Russia was in the "new highest stage of historical development of military science."

The military commentator said the three branches of military art—strategy, tactics and harmony—had been fully synchronized in the Red Army. He also suggested that fifth columns might help to defeat the capitalist nations in the event of another war.

The capitalist state, he said, "is in nature hostile to the peoples and masses and cannot plan that the masses during the war will always and everywhere unconditionally support it."

Chinese Girl Has Not Eaten In Nine Years

Chungking, June 8.—Something new in Chinese puzzles is reported from Chungking today.

It's the perplexing story of Yang Mei, a peasant girl.

In the first place, Yang Mei—who is 20 years old—claims she hasn't eaten in nine years. Doctors know it to be a fact that she hasn't eaten in 20 days. They've been watching her all that time in the Chungking Municipal hospital.

This girl, says Dr. T. Y. Gan, the head of the hospital, "reads a perfectly normal life except for not eating and limited drinking."

When they ask her why she does not eat, Yang Mei replies: "I'm not hungry."

The second thing about Yang Mei that has doctors mystified is five peanuts. She won't eat them with her. She won't eat them by herself. She won't eat them in her pockets. Finally, convinced that the girl was not a nutcase, the hospital attendants finally got her to show the peanuts today. At first she shrunk back, with both hands clanked in her pockets. Finally, convinced that the peanuts would not be taken from her, Yang Mei brought them out.

NOTICE

A tabulation last week revealed that the Tribune collected for less than 25 per cent of all the classified advertising placed in the Tribune during the months of February, March, and April. In short, one person out of every four who phones a classified ad to the Tribune comes in and pays for it. This situation has obtained for a long time, and we have decided to follow the policy used by the majority of weeklies in the state. Effective this week the Tribune cannot accept classified advertising over the telephone except from commercial firms having established credit with the Tribune. All classified advertising to individuals will be on a cash-in-advance basis. No such ads will be accepted from individuals on a "run-until-we-tell-you-to-stop-it" basis. We will accept all classified ads for a definite number of insertions, renewal to be at the option of the advertiser, and cash in advance for all insertions.

When the sun had come over the cow shed Tuesday morning, the Moors were entrenched in third place with a game and a half lead over Lexington, two games behind Concord in second place, and two and one-half games off the pace set by Statesville in the perch position.

With the four top teams bunched so closely, and with these clubs playing each other within the next 18 days, the fans will have the opportunity of seeing who's who in this circuit in the very near future.

Should the Moors be able to win both games from either Concord or Statesville in the approaching series, they would be crowding the top. A split with both teams would weaken our position because time has to be run out in baseball as it does in other things. A two-game loss to either club would momentarily eliminate us from the pennant push.

A deal was brewing Tuesday between Byron Hager of the Moors and Earl Mann of the Atlanta Crackers whereby the Moors were to get a veteran pitcher and a second baseman direct from the Atlanta club. In return for this, the Crackers were to get an option on some Moors players at the end of this season. If this deal goes through, the Moors will be hard to stop from here on out.

The latest information the Tribune can get indicates that these players should arrive here by the end of this week.

BUNTS & GRUNTS—By virtue of being the top team in the League at this time, Statesville will be pitted against the rest of the clubs in the first of the two All-Star games. This game will be played in Thomasville on Sunday, June 13. Here is how the loop all-stars will stack up against Statesville in that game:

First base: Charlie Knight, Mooreville; Second base: Gray Hampton, Lexington; Third base: Hal Harrigan, Salisbury; Shortstop, Bob Chase, Albemarle; Utility—Hut Davis, Concord.

Outfielders: Norman Small, Mooreville; Ross Morrow, Mooreville; Owen Linn, Hickory; Forrest Hubbs, Thomasville.

Catchers: Red Lane, Mooreville; Tom Hackett, Hickory.

Pitchers: Al Jarrett, Thomasville; Clint Green, Concord; Harry Jordan, Concord; Red McArthur, Lexington.

Things look funny in many respects around the League this season. For instance, of the first 9 men chosen for the All-Star game, four are from Mooreville, yet the Moors are in third place. And in the recent figures released by the Home Agency, Statesville was next to the bottom in hitting and on the bottom in fielding, yet the Owls are leading the League. It proves what good pitching can do for a club.

The All-Star pick made by the seven managers who will pit their best against Statesville is none too hot, according to my way of thinking. For instance, Harry Jordan got only Small's vote for pitcher.

There is any of those other six managers who could hit his hat number against Harry in 20 games I'll eat the hat, with a touch of tobacco thrown in for good measure. As for Hal Harrigan, a better third baseman than Eddie Walczak I'll eat Hal's glove without any salt.

Joe Moody, chief scout for the Atlanta Crackers, saw Tommy Farnsworth in two games and went for the boy. All of which proves an old adage that when a big league scout finds a kid who can hit that summer two pitch he goes for him. Any youngster who can hit a low pitch can always get a hearing in higher baseball.

Dave Jolly has been optioned from the Tulsa Double-A club to the Columbia Class A club, subject to 24-hour recall.

Hoyle Williams is a sore arm. Bob Crowe, former Moors manager, has been reinstated in organized baseball and is managing the Class D Newcastle team in Pennsylvania. Incidentally, he was put out of a game for fustling with the ump.

You fans be sure and turn out in droves for the Statesville and Concord series and help the Moors get over the hump. With help coming from Atlanta and the Moors in the mood, we can get back on top.

prevail today, that the Federal Government should be an agency to "give" us something.

Second, the theory that education can be "distributed" or "equalized" among our various states. So please remember—it's the "principle of the thing" which I object—not any desire to "cheat" anyone out of an education. The principle goes back to the correct American answer to the question: "Just what is the role of the U. S. Government?" Isn't the government the servant of all the people of all the states?

How can the government "give" financial aid to the states? The people in the states must first "give" the money to the Federal Government before the Federal Government can redistribute it to the states. Complete redistribution would have caused Mr. Ewing to say somewhere in his article:

"Of course, you realize, dear readers, that the Federal Government cannot get the $300,000,000 out of this about cut of this. You will have to pay this to us."

Mr. Ewing's article includes a table showing the expenditure per pupil in public elementary and secondary schools for 1944-45, and the estimated per-pupil expenditure with proposed Federal aid. This table is headed by this disarming question:

"Do your schools need Federal aid?"

Well, in the first place, I don't like the words "Federal aid." I live in Michigan, and I believe we have fairly good schools throughout our state. Even in the poorest of our "Michigan" schools—may—need—"aid," I can answer Mr. Ewing unequivocally that "I do not believe our schools need Federal aid."

Michigan has a system of aid up for collecting school taxes, and for distributing them. I cannot see why we should place an additional tax upon our citizens and turn the money over to the Federal Government to "redistribute."

I would go a step further and say that our state can't get Federal "aid" under Mr. Ewing's program. The reason is that we would contribute more than we would get back. Careful analysis of Mr. Ewing's table indicates that 33 states would contribute more than they would receive.

Peculiarly, Mr. Ewing mentions in his article only the amounts the states will receive. Note this statement:

"Thus, according to the estimates for this bill, rich New York, with 2,400,000 children, would receive $12,010,000. Mississippi, with 595,000 children, would receive $3,000,000. But, according to Mr. Ewing, 'the formula is arranged so as to stimulate states to appropriate an amount equal to at least 25 percent of the income of their citizens.' I've used this 'formula' and I find that, under it, the citizens of New York state would pay several times $27,600,000 into the proposed 'Federal fund'."

This isn't a "something-for-nothing" program. It's a program to "distribute" education. If we in Michigan want to tax ourselves to provide more education for our children, it would be far cheaper for us to spend and administer the money ourselves. Why should we send it to Washington for Washington to send back to us?

If we want to go a step further and help educate the children of "poorer" states, it would be far better to send the money directly to these states without distribution through Washington. That would cut overhead and eliminate the "planners." It would also enable us to keep our freedom.

Mr. Ewing's article is typical of the manner in which we have been almost bludgeoned by our Administration into believing that if we agree on objectives, we must go along with any kind of method, no matter how unrealistic it may be. I repeat... I am in favor of the objective, but not in favor of the method.

If, through an emotional statement of the "objective," we permit our Federal Government to "distribute" and equalize and socialize education, what is to prevent our eventual complete socialization?

Federal Government subsidy of housing, the same as the proposed educational program, would be the collecting of more taxes in some states than in others to support housing programs in "poorer" states.

But have we any assurance that Federal subsidy would stop with-

Old Judge Early's FAMILY COURT

JOE vs. DAD

Docket: Shall Joe play football?

JOE:

"I'm a sophomore in high school and the coach wants me to go out for football. Dad says the game is too rough, but it looks to me like he's missing out on a lot of fun if I pass it up. I'm 14."

DAD:

"Joe's a husky boy, but that old saying about the bigger they are the harder they fall makes me feel uneasy. I just don't want a kid of mine taking those chances, no matter if it does seem like a lot of fun to the boy."

Findings And Verdict Of The Judge

Well, Dad, you've brought to the court one point the old judge ain't going to argue. For there's no normal father who wants his son to take unnecessary chances of getting hurt—whether it's football or anything else.

But as your fears really justify, Dad, in this case, if Joe's as healthy and husky as he seems, the odds are all in favor of playing a little high school football. Not hurt him, but actually benefit him. Players are pretty well protected by their uniforms and safety rules nowadays and the old judge feels there are many valuable lessons in sportsmanship and teamwork Joe might learn from high school football.

education and housing? There are a great many more doctors and dentists per capita in the state of California than there are in the state of Mississippi. So along with a program of socialized medicine, it is not fair to assume that social "planners" will probably want to "distribute" the doctors and dentists to put them in better proportion to the population?

Where does this "distribute" philosophy stop? The people in California, for instance, have one automobile to every 3.6 persons... while the people in Mississippi have only one automobile to every 9.8 persons. The "planners" might claim that this is "unfair," that the Federal Government should "equalize" the distribution of automobiles.

This brings up another thought. There are more automobiles in the country than bathtubs. Our "do-gooders" might say, "This is shocking. Cleanliness is next to godliness. We must inaugurate a Federal program to produce more bathtubs and 'distribute' them according to need."

Bathrooms? Not at all, in my opinion, if we continue this trend to domination by the Federal Government. It can happen here.

There's no limit to the amount of "good" projects for which we can tax ourselves. But our Federal Government now has a debt of more than 250 billion, and we should be reducing that debt. Many state governments have surplus funds in their treasuries. None has a debt in proportion to our Federal Government debt.

To my way of thinking, there are only two ways in which "we, the people" can have the benefit of more of the good things of life. One: Reduce the cost of government. "Federal, state, and local government. The tax burden bears on everyone today. It has been estimated that the average consumer pays 35c of every dollar of his income in actual or hidden taxes.

Two: Return purely personal prerogatives and privileges to the people. I can't find in the history books where "we, the people" ever decided to give the Federal Government the power to educate us, house us, and keep us healthy.

To sum up, I believe that no state can participate in any enterprise that the Federal Government, without surrendering some degree of its sovereignty.

One of the greatest of all Americans was the author of our Declaration of Independence, Thomas Jefferson. He said, "I own a gun, a friend of a very energetic government. It is always oppressive."

And it was the great John Marshall who said, "The Power is the Power to Destroy!"

FATHERS DAY... SUNDAY, JUNE 20... Once again we have with us that time of year when we are reminded of the calendar, we honor Dad on his day. So few other times of the year is he given a thought, except when we want something of him, and he takes it all in good part, satisfied if we are with the way things are going in his home.

Much ado is made of mother and the part she plays in our lives, to her is given all the credit when we are successful in what we undertake but did you ever stop to think that without Dad's aid she would not be in position to give us that help we so much admire. True she looks after the home but Dad goes out and gets the wherewithal to run the home, slaving day after day & keep a roof over our heads. So to him rightly belongs his share of the glory, if there is any, in our successful achievements.

In the words of an old song this day brings to mind: "Remember if it wasn't for that rooster on the fence there'd be no chickens pecking in the yard." And "I never would have known that darling mother of my own, if it hadn't been for dear old dad. So let's give mother all the credit that is due her, but let us not forget to give the 'old man' a break also. He'll appreciate it, make no doubt, if you surprise him on Father's Day with some little gift. It need not be an expensive one, the act is all he is looking for; just to know that he has been remembered.

DO YOUR FAMILY'S VITAMINS VANISH INTO THIN AIR?

A check-up by our state health authorities reveals a serious Vitamin C deficiency in the diet of both children and grown-ups in our area.

This vitamin is essential to vigorous health, yet it's often lost through wilting or overcooking. Our Home Service Specialists give you these suggestions to help you retain valuable Vitamin C:

- Be sure your leafy vegetables are stored promptly. (Vitamin C vanishes in proportion as vegetables are allowed to wilt).
- Keep the outside leaves (the more color the more vitamins!)
- Cook closely covered, in as little water as possible.
- Stir as seldom as possible.

His Bad Heart Stands Up Well

Chicago — An inhalator squad called to a saloon on Leland Ave., saw something familiar about Byron Holton, 65, as he lay stricken with a heart attack on the bar-room floor.

Lieut. Irwin Thiel of Rescue Squad 6 recognized the victim as one his squad had treated six times in the last four months after collapses in saloons.

When they revived him and took him to American Hospital, Dr. Jerome J. Moses recognized Holton as a heart patient who had been brought in 16 times from nearby gin-mills.

Holton, a printer, was charged with disorderly conduct.

Scott Forces Claim Iredell

Definitely In Their Column

Date In '48, Theme Song Of Republicans

Washington, June 15—The Republicans have selected their 1948 campaign song — "Date in '48" by handpicked Meyer Davis and Charles Lee.

It will be featured at the Republican national convention this month by Davis and his orchestra.

The words, by Lee, are: "We've a date in '48, Watch us Roll up the vote in every state. The coming White House resident Will be a brand new President. North and South, East and West, here we come with the men who are best."

For the USA and the GOP On the great day of victory— On the great day of victory.

George Williams Claimed By Death

Predict Majority In Primary Run - Off

Believe Johnson Without Effective Organization

(BY T. M. MCKNIGHT)

A quick survey by this writer on the lower, middle, and upper sections of the Republican Party reveals the fact that the Kerr Scott supporters feel confident their man will carry the county by a comfortable majority in the runoff of primary June 26.

This belief, admittedly biased, stems from the conviction held by the Scott supporters that Johnson has practically no effective Republican organization. On the other hand, these Scott backers claim they have a smooth-working set-up that will function much better than in the first primary.

One Scott supporter, who has been active in the gubernatorial race for several months, told the writer that Fredell would cast almost as many votes in the runoff-off as he did in the first contest. He based this claim, he added, on evidence he had gathered that the

Man Is Set For Thursday

George O. Williams, age 32 years, died in the Lower Hill hospital at 8:10 o'clock Tuesday afternoon. He was stricken while at Baltimore, Md., was brought home by ambulance Monday night, and died at the local hospital Tuesday morning.

A native of Illinois, Mr. Williams had resided in Mooreville since 1936 when he was married to Miss Alice Ellis, who survives.

Funeral services are planned for Thursday afternoon, and will be conducted at the Williams home on South Church Street. Burial will follow with one stop-over, Frank Williams cemetery.

Battle Of Pitchers Ends In 1-0 Triumph For Moors

The Mooreville Mills softball team, 1947 state champs, kept their undefeated record intact last Satural people of the county are more interested now than at any time in the race being carried on last spring.

Breaking these claims down into their component parts, this reporter cannot go along with them entirely, but must admit that there is evidence in support of several angles put forth by these supporters.

It is perhaps true that Johnson has had the most ineffective, inadequate campaign organization of any gubernatorial candidate in the times in Fredell county. His scant majority in the first primary was self-propelled and if the Johnson campaign spent a dime in undue campaign funds, it would be a money tossed down the drain. Without any semblance of an organization, Johnson would ordinarily get in an even break among the voters of Fredell county. It is at least that much normal support for Johnson among the voters of the county. Whatever majority Johnson had over Scott in the first primary was due to the vote from the Unstead lands in Fredell and due in no part to the dominant Johnson campaign organization in the county. the youth of this country he called upon to give the youth in war.

Commander Galloway gave a resume of the original objectives of the Legion at the time of its organization thirty years ago, which were to help the youth in war. The first of these was the rehabilitation and care of disabled veterans and the second was the promotion of patriotism and the prevention of communism and other subversive doctrines. He stated that these two main objectives had been carried on through the years and were still the prime concern of the Legion as it guides the youth through their seventeen thousand posts and more than three million members.

Commander Galloway installed new officers for the coming year, Mr. James V. Houston being installed as commander of the Greensboro post.

During most of the campaign, it might have been a different story. But the sad fact is that up to now Johnson has had nothing to even resemble an effective organization in Ireland.

A number of prominent individuals, professional men and farmers, disgusted with the behavior of the official Johnson organization in the county are taking over the reins individually in their respective communities in an effort to give Johnson's faction hearing in the run-off. This writer suspects that upon their efforts will largely depend Johnson's success in the second count.

It is not to be denied, however, that carry Ireland county, in spite of the fact that what his supporters say about Johnson's organization is not true, Johnson will carry Ireland county, in spite of the fact that he will carry it through the individual support of non-political men and women interested in good government.
